This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

FOR many years before his death, it was the anxious wish of Dr. PARR that his Library should remain entire, and that it should, in consequence, be purchased by some opulent and liberal nobleman, or preferably, by some public body. "The world," he was used to say, "would then see what sort of a collection of books had been made by a country parson." He was one day conversing with his friend, Dr. Maltby, upon the subject. Dr. M. observed, it was very uncertain whether the books could be kept together; and, if they were, the world might know little or nothing about them, as they might not be very accessible to the public, or be absorbed in a much mightier mass of library, as for instance, in the British Museum. The better way to inform the world of the nature and amount of his literary treasures, would be for himself to prepare a Catalogue raisonnée, with such observations upon any book as his well-stored mind and accurate memory would readily suggest. Dr. PARR agreed in the justice of these remarks; but said, "I am now too old; and, besides, I have no amanuensis." However, he did employ himself in arranging a Catalogue; and now and then did dictate some curious remark or anecdote, though with far less frequency than his friend had suggested, and the world could wish. He had also been previously in the habit of marking on the fly-leaf of any particular book something relative to the work or the author, which suddenly occurred to his mind. These remarks, it must be acknowledged, were sometimes committed to paper without sufficient reflection, and sometimes, perhaps, in a fit of spleen. We have no doubt that more mature consideration would have induced him, sometimes to revise, and sometimes to expunge matter, which will even now appear to some readers of this Catalogue, hasty and offensive. The Executors have indeed exercised their discretion upon some passages of this kind, which have been submitted to their examination, and they would have suppressed some others, where the expression is of a nature to give pain to living characters; but they have been prevented from doing this to the extent they could have wished. Circumstances, over which they had no control, compelled the removal of the books from Hatton Parsonage. A very rapid inspection and account of the contents of the Library, by Mr. Bohn, jun. with the assistance of an incomplete and inaccurate list (chiefly from the dictation of Dr. PARR,) produced the materials from which the present volume has been digested; and the absence of the Executors from London, together with their own important engagements, has prevented them from paying that exact attention to the progress of the work, which they could have wished. They lament, therefore, that some errors have crept into the titles of the books; they lament yet more that some unguarded and hasty expressions of opinion still remain, which they are persuaded the venerable author would himself have seen the importance of correcting, if his life and faculties had been longer spared. But such as it is, confessedly imperfect, the Executors think that they are complying with a favorite wish of their deceased friend, and at the same time enriching the world with some curious anecdotes, and some profound observations, when they lay this Catalogue before the public. Those who may be induced to examine it, cannot but admire the resolution and the diligence, which must have been brought into action for so many years, in order to raise such a monument of learned lore from an income, originally very scanty, and never very large; and they will forgive a few peevish and ill-judged observations, in consideration of the much greater number of passages, in which varied learning, solid judgment, a felicity of memory, and rectitude of principle, vie with each other for superiority.

It has become so much a fashion of late for scholars to publish their Catalogues during their lives, that it must be a subject of interest with the public to have the Catalogue of so great a divine, so great a scholar, and altogether so great a man as Dr. PARR; whose Library, though chiefly consisting of useful books, nevertheless contains many articles of the greatest curiosity. "Micyllus de Re Metrica," did belong to the Library, and is inserted in the Catalogue; but, alas! it is not now to be found, and there is reason to apprehend that it has been purloined. This book is of so great rarity, that Dr. Askew would not suffer Dr. PARR even to touch it, but shewed it to him through the glass case of one of the cabinets of his library. Justiniani Institt. seu Elementorum libri quatuor, ab J. Baptista Pisacane in Carmina Heroica redacti, folio, Neap. 1694, is a book of such extreme rarity, that no other copies are known, except the two mentioned in this Catalogue. In many of the books Dr. PARR has made annotations, besides the brief remarks alluded to before; and in every class of literature, but especially in the classical books, has inserted notices, which, as the productions of so rich a mind, must give a greatly increased value to the volume. The Theological part of this Library, which alone fills 130 pages, is headed by a book, Elias Hutter's "Polyglott Bible," which Bohn, in his own Catalogue, describes as unique. Classics, Language, and Philology, occupy 202 pages. In History, Philosophy, Physics, Metaphysics, and Poetry, upwards of 200 pages are employed; and in this collection are included 16 pages, Poetici, Satyrici, Faceti, headed in the MSS. "Books most of them very rare and very expensive." Dr. PARR'S Library was not rich in Manuscripts—the list is contained in 5 pages. Of their rarity and value, I cannot speak with confidence. There are some modern Greek books, and there is a most rich collection of Tracts upon almost all subjects; some of them of the greatest value. The Catalogue concludes with 34 different works which Dr. PARR separated from the rest, intending to use them for his projected Life of Dr. Samuel Johnson. Such is the analysis of the Catalogue. Nor do those of Burmann, Askew, or Reviczki claim any superiority, either on the score of useful and scholar-like selection, or of scarcity or of rarity. The books of ancient typography are not numerous, but there are enough to allure the bibliographer; and among those of recent date, there are some of the finest specimens of modern art.

But the Library will speak for itself whensoever it is examined with accuracy; and all that remains now to be wished is, that a collection made with so much care, at so great an expense, and accumulated by such slow degress, by such a mind as that of Dr. PARR, may be kept together, and placed in a situation, in which it may become a light to scholars and to future generations.

This Preface must not be concluded, without a distinct acknowledgement of the obligations incurred to Mr. Bohn, jun. for the great labour which he has bestowed in compiling this work, as well as for the judgment and knowledge which he has shewn in correcting errors occasioned by the indistinct hand-writing of Dr. PARR, or the blunders of his various amanuenses.

POSTSCRIPT.

Circumstances have unfortunately arisen, since the above Preface was written, upon which some explanation ought to be offered to the public. The executors of Dr. Parr were under the necessity of entrusting the examination of all memoranda, connected with the books in his Library, to Mr. Henry Bohn. It is plain they were aware that many things in those papers might give pain or offence in quarters, where they are quite confident Dr. Parr himself would have been most unwilling, upon full consideration, to produce either. And they were engaged in reviewing the whole compilation, in order to expunge such parts as appeared to them less suited to the public eye. They even engaged in it with an anxiety, which to many, perhaps, (and especially those who were acquainted with the ardent temper, and strong manner of expression peculiar to Dr. Parr) might have seemed unnecessarily fastidious. While they were thus employed, they learned, with extreme surprise, that the Catalogue, which they thought reposing in confidential hands, had been suffered to pass, without Mr. Bohn's concurrence, into the hands of strangers; and that many passages, purporting to be extracts from it, had actually appeared, without the least sanction on their part, and entirely against their wishes, in a periodical publication. They lost no time in remonstrating with the Editor of that paper; and, in disclaiming all right in all persons to communicate any such matter for publication; and they have to regret that a communication, which was intended merely to vindicate their own right, and the fame of Dr. Parr, was received by him with language so uncourteous, and treated in a spirit so unfriendly.

Hosce meos inter libros cum pauca supersint,
Aut dominum fallant; ne prosint furibus istis,
Qui cæcâ cumulant hinc inde volumina fraude,
Intellecta parum, et pictis servanda columnis!
Neu blattæ aut timeæ noceant, neve improbus oras
Dente petat sorex, neu, quisquis tura piperque
Divendit, folia ulla suos male vertat in usus!
Istæ me juvenem atque senem, me nocte dieque,
Me comites otî pariter sociique laborum,
Sive docere alios volui, seu discere, chartæ
Delectare foris, prodesse domique solebant.
Invidiam ergo meis cupiens procul afore votis,
Ex animo dominis precor omnia fausta futuris.
Forte mei memores, studia et mihi cara colentes,
Sint docti, Musisque suis et Apolline digni:
Ne credant alium sapiente bonoque beatum!

BIBLIA POLYGLOTTA.

Biblia Polyglotta, Hebraica, Chaldaica, Græca, Latina, Germanica, Italica, Gallica, Saxonica, et Slavonica—Novum Testamentum Polyglottum, Syriacum, Hebraicum, Græcum, Latinum, Bohemicum, Germanicum, Italicum, Hispanicum, Gallicum, Anglicum Vetust., Danicum, et Polonicum. Studio et labore Eliæ Hutteri. 6 stout volumes, folio Norimberg, 1599, *&c.

"I bought Elias Hutter's Polyglott from Mr, Bohn, who, in a note inserted at page 233 of his excellent Catalogue, describes this copy as unique." S. P.

The following is the note referred to:

"The Polyglott Bible of Elias Hutterus ranks among the very rarest books in Bibliography. There does not appear to exist a single complete copy in any of the foreign public Libraries. In England, the one now submitted is decidedly unique. 'Such is its amazing rarity,' says Clement, 'that to obtain the work complete would be an acquisition requiring the lives of two or three men: owing to its having been printed at the private expence of Hutter, at different periods, and but very few copies struck off.' The merits of it are unquestionable. Hutter was a most accurate and indefatigable scholar, and deeply versed in the Oriental and Occidental languages. There being no previous Hebrew Version of the New Testament, this laborious author undertook one expressly for this edition, which he accomplished in one twelvemonth: an instance of his singular learning and application. The division of the page is extremely well contrived for exhibiting the twelve parallel versions at one view: each column containing two languages in alternate verses. For further particulars, see Clement, Le Long, Vogt, Carpzovius, Wolf, Calmet, Walchius, Reimmann, and innummerable others."

"Memorandum.—An Answer to a late Book written against the learned and Rev. Dr. Bentley relating to some MS. Notes on Callimachus, by S. Whateley. Together with an examination of Mr. Bennet's Appendix to the said Book."

"Advertisement.—Lately published, the Epistles of Phalaris, translated into English from the Original by the Author of the Answer.

"In 1806, Dr. Butler lent me, from Dr. Taylor's books in Shrewsbury Library, the very learned and argumentative work, called 'An Answer.' Dr. Taylor, in his own hand-writing, made the above Memorandum on the page opposite the title. The Advertisement comes after the Preface.

"In Taylor's hand-writing in the Shrewsbury Book, is:—'S. Whately. I have seen an English translation of Phalaris's Epistles (with some things relative to this dispute,) by one Whately, A. M. and Fell. of Magd. Coll. Oxon. Surely the same. See 14 pages on Solon. Whately, Magd. Coll. A. M. 1684. Oxf. Grad.'

"I lent the defence of Bentley to Dr. Routh, President of Magdalen College, Oxford, who was pleased with it, and wrote under Dr. John Taylor's memorandum:—'This person, (i. e. S. W.) does not appear to have been either a Fellow or Demy of Magdalen College.' The 14 pages are in the Advertisement announcing the Translation of Phalaris's Epistles.

"I find much valuable matter on Callimachus in the Schedæ Ruhnkenii manu scriptæ, from page 92 to page 140, subjoined to the Epistles of Ruhnken, Valckenaer, Wyttenbach, and others, to J. A. Ernesti, and published at Leipsic, in 1812, by Tittman, who dedicates the Book to Heyne.

"A scholar should read the Callimachi Elegiarum Fragmenta, by Valck. with the Preface and Index of Jo. Luzac, Leyden, 1799.

"The Book, which most unjustly charged Bentley with plagiarism from Stanley, was published in 1699, in London, with this title: 'A short Account of Dr. Bentley's Humanity and Justice to those Authors, who have written before him.'" S. P.

"The gift of the Rev. Cary Sumner, S.T.P. Head Master of Harrow School, to Samuel Parr, 1771. Dr. Sumner deservedly possessed the confidence of his scholars, and the respect of his literary companions. He had elegant manners, various erudition, and most exquisite taste. He was the instructor of my boyhood, and the guide of my youth; and during the thirty-eight years that have elapsed since his death, I have often thought of him, and often spoken of him, as animam qualem neque candidiorem terra tulit, ' neque cui me esset devinctior alter."

Inserted is a long MS. note dictated by Dr. Parr, from which the following is an extract:—"The Dedication contains seventy-six lines, and is addressed to Prince Potemkin. The metre of the seventh line is irregular, and indeed unintelligible. Strange improprieties of this kind occur in other parts of the poem, where the verses are sometimes too long and sometimes too short; (here follow examples.) To the text are subjoined very copious notes in Greek, the matter of which is sometimes historical, mythological, and critical. They abound with quotations from authors both ancient and modern, particularly Italian."

——— Bucolics, with an English Translation and Notes by J. Martyn, 8vo. 1749

"I learnt the Eclogues of Virgil from this very book, under my revered instructor Dr. Thackeray, Master of Harrow School; and like other boys, I took it up with me to lesson. When a schoolmaster, I recommended this work to my scholars, as I also did the Georgics by Martyn, and I not only allowed, but advised them to bring these books to lesson. The notes must have assisted, and the English translation on the sides, could protect no boy from my searching questions. I learnt the Bucolics in a part of the school resembling what is called the Remove, and situated between the fourth and fifth forms. I gave this much valued copy to John Bartlam, Thursday, March 13th, 1817." S. P.

"Dr. Parr has derived from this book great and valuable information, but has sometimes lamented the imperfections of those editions, to which Johnson had recourse."

Johnson's Dictionary of the English Language, with the Addition of several thousand Words, by the Rev. H. J. Todd, 4 vol. 4to. 1818

"To the respectable Booksellers, who were concerned in Mr. Todd's edition of Johnson's Dictionary, I sent an interleaved copy, in which my much esteemed friend, the late James Eyre, of Solihull, had inserted some corrections and additions. They agreed to pay fifty pounds for the benefit of Mr. Eyre's family, and most punctually fulfilled their engagement. It was the wish of Mr. Eyre's relations that his book should be returned to me as a keepsake, and this wish was communicated to the Booksellers. In consequence of some regulations, which appeared to them proper, they could not comply with the wishes of Mr. Eyre's family and my own; but they with great politeness, and even generosity, offered to send me Mr. Todd's valuable edition of the Dictionary, in lieu of the copy which belonged to Mr. Eyre. I gladly accepted that offer, and in justice to the persons who made it, I have recorded the fact, which does credit to their good sense and honourable principles." Samuel Parr, June 1, 1819.

Terentianus Maurus de Litteris, Syllabis, Pedibus, et Metris, e Recensione et cum Notis Laurentii Santenii. Opus Santenii Morte interruptum absolvit D. I. Van Lennep, 4to. Trajecti ad Rhenum, e Typogr. I. Altheer: prostant Londini apud Bohn, 1825

" Omitted, but particularly to be noticed. Two imperfect copies of Terentianus Maurus. One of them contains the text down to v. 1797, and then follow notes from page 17 to 304. The other, more complete, contains the text to v. 2984, and notes from page 1 to 304.

" I first saw a specimen of this edition about thirty-four years ago, in the possession of the learned Bishop Burgess, when I was with him at Corpus Christi College, Oxford. This was in the 8vo. form. I afterwards heard that the 8vo. had been changed into quarto. By the aid of Sir Gerard Vaneck, who had connections in Holland, I applied for so much of the work as might then be completed, and received the first and more imperfect copy. When I desired to have the rest, and promised to pay, I could not obtain it: and the bookseller, upon expostulation, acknowledged, that he had deliberately sent over an imperfect copy, lest we in England should reprint and undersell his work. I therefore paid nothing for the parts, but was prepared to pay for the whole when it reached me. The other important copy was procured for me by Mr. Palgrave of Yarmouth, and was paid for. It contains the whole of the Text in 139 pages, but the Notes extend only to line 1800. I have caused many inquiries to be made, but can meet with no tidings about the remainder; but I may think myself tolerably well off, in possessing the entire text, and so large a proportion of the Notes. Santenius, I hear, is dead. He had great taste, great acuteness, and a fine ear; and I have a little volume of his charming original verses in Latin.

" In November 1824, I directed Mr. Bohn to make further inquiries for the remainder of Terentian, and was told, as I had been told before, that the Dutch bookseller still kept back the concluding sheets, lest the book should be pirated in England, and the sale of the Dutch edition obstructed. At the same time Mr. Bohn iuformed me that he had entered into an arrangement with the printer, which would lead to the speedy publication of the work. I feel interested in the result, and hope he will not be disappointed." S. P.

It remains for me to add, that I was not disappointed, for within a few weeks after the demise of Dr. Parr, this long protracted edition was completed and published. H. G. B. (Ed.)

——— Dissertation upon the most celebrated Roman Poets: also an Essay upon the Roman Elegiac Poets, by Major Pack. The third edition, to which is added, an Essay upon Mr. Addison's Writings, by R. Young, Esq. 12mo. 1721

"This is a very scarce book. I for thirty years have possessed the first edition of Addison's Dissertation, and sent my learned friend Mr. Barker in quest of a duplicate. He, guided by my hints, procured me this book. Plain it is, that a work so soon reprinted must at the time have been recollected, and I am at a loss to account for the omission of both the Latin and the English, in the Variorum edition of Addison's Works." Dr. Parr's opinion of Hermann, communicated in a Letter to Mr. Bohn, Sept. 14, 1820, deserves to be here recorded. After desiring to have all the works on metrical subjects sent to him as soon as they appeared, he proceeds:—"My hero is Hermann. He is not only a Scholar, but a Philosopher of the highest order; and he smiles probably, as I do, at the petty Criticisms of puny scholiasts, who in fact do not understand what is written by this great Critic."

Jortin's (Dr. Jno.) Miscellaneous Observations upon Authors, ancient and modern, 2 vol. 8vo. 1731

" This copy is extremely valuable, because it contains some additional criticisms from a manuscript of Dr. Jortin, and also the names of the different Writers, from Dr. Jortin's own copy, lent to me by a friend. I can answer for its authenticity: and I consider it no mean acquisition to know who were the co-adjutors of the excellent writer, and what corrections or improvements he made in the course of his extensive and accurate reading.

" To this book a very sharp, and in some respects really learned answer, appeared in 1731, in 'several letters to a friend.'—I have it." S. P.

"I have triplicates of this work, and value each copy. I had lent one to Dr. Johnson, just before his death, because Morhof has a most argumentative and learned Dissertation in answer to the obscure and malignant attack of Pollio on the Patavinity of Livy's stile. Dr. Johnson and myself were decidedly against Pollio. This valued copy I unfortunately set fire to as I was reading in my little room at Hatton, on Friday, January 20, 1804; and I, with great difficulty, procured another from London. The third copy was procured for me in Italy by Lady Oxford." S. P.

Gusti Zinzerlingii Criticorum Juvenilium Promulsis; qua in compluria Ciceronis, Taciti, et aliorum loca emendantur. Subjectæ sunt Libelli ejusdem Diatribæ duæ: 1, Nobile quoddam Problema Prosodiacum excutiens. 2, Tria insignia Methaphoræ reciprocæ Exempla exhibens.—IV. Jani Gebhardi Crepundiorum libri tres.—V. Ejusdem Antiquarum Lectionum libri duo. "In this is the hand-writing of the celebrated Wyttenbach, to whom the book once belonged."

"From Zinzerling the learned Gaisford has made large and useful extracts, in his Notes on Hephæstio."

"In the Crepundia are some judicious remarks upon short vowels before sp, sc, and st, several of which are quoted by Professor Gaisford; but at page 295, 'Altera Scylla maris monstrum,' quoted by Gebhardus as from Ovid, is not in that author: but Ovid writes, 'Quod medio lentæ fixum curvamine spinæ,' Metam. lib. III, v. 66. And 'sæpe creat molles aspera spina rosas,' Epist. ex Ponto, lib. II, Ep. 2." S. P.

Prefixed to this volume are MS. remarks, by Dr. Parr, chiefly citing examples from Ovid, of the final vowel left short before sp, st, &c.

"I once possessed a copy of this work, which had belonged to Talleyrand, and contained many valuable notes in the hand-writing of the learned Antiquary Beaufort, who wrote an ingenious book on the want of authenticity in the early History of Rome. I gave that copy to my honoured friend and patron, Mr. Coke of Holkham, and received in return for it the one which is here inserted; and into which, at the close, I have introduced a complete transcript of the notes contained in Talleyrand's copy. Beaufort's opinion is controverted, and I think confuted, in Mr. Hooke's History of Rome. The subject was once very interesting to Scholars in France, and several ingenious Disputations upon it are inserted in the 'Mémoires de l'Académie des Belles Lettres.'" S. P.

IX. Frankenstein (Christ. Frid.) de Ærario Populi Romani.
X. Rivini (Andreæ) Dissertationes duæ de Venilia et Salacia, nec non Malacia.

"They are all very curious and very learned. Dr. Parr lays great stress upon the two by Reinesius and that by Jonsenius, but much greater upon the work of Daumius on the lost Roots of the Latin Language; the Syntagma occurs not unfrequently in Catalogues, but it is by no means valued as it deserves. He gave one copy to the Library at St. John's College, Cambridge, and another to the Library at Holkham."

But having read his slanderous book, Mr. Rennel, who is a sound scholar, an orthodox clergyman, and a most animated writer, would have done well not to have written a sort of postscript. Eton.—An Extract from the Case of the Obligation of the Electors of Eton College to Supply all Vacancies in that Society, with those who are or have been Fellows of King's College, Cambridge, so long as Persons properly qualified are to be had within that Description, by Dr. Thomas Ashton, 4to. 1771

"When Dr. Ashton published his pamphlet, Barnard, the Provost, had secured a majority of votes among the fellows for the election of his own brother, an Alien. By a tacit compact between Ashton and the Society, the promise given previously to Ashton's enemies was allowed to be fulfilled, on the condition that, in future, Aliens should be excluded; and in consequence of a resolution, which then passed, this goodly practice has been continued to the present day. But another important question arises. If persons, actually fellows of King's, and habiles et sufficientes can be found, are not the electors bound by oath to prefer them to candidates, who, having formerly been fellows, ex causis licitis et honestis recesserunt a Collegio Regali, and of course to other candidates, such as conducts, or members of other colleges? I think that, according to the mind of the founder, and by a fair interpretation of the Statutes, they ought to be preferred, and on the principle requiring such preference, must be founded all the analogical reasoning which excludes Aliens, while persons of the other three classes can be found. In page 14 Ashton speaks of King's College, and shrewdly shews the distinction for which I contend. But his reasoning, if valid against Aliens, necessarily establishes that distinction. There is no distinction for the election of candidates, who have been fellows, while those who are fellows 'can be had, or are worth having.' In practice, I am sorry to say, that the election of Winchester fellows is in this respect just as irreconcileable to their Statutes as the Eton elections. But will an honest man, respecting his oath, and the subjects upon which he appeals to heaven, be decoyed by a practice, which being unjustly vicious, can acquire no good moral or statutable properties from length of time, and which continues to injure statutable claimants?" "This interesting book is often mentioned by Laing, in his History of Scotland. A respectable London bookseller, I now forget his name, once had a copy which I eagerly endeavoured to get, but most unfortunately it had been sold two days before I applied for it; I afterwards made many fruitless enquiries among booksellers and scholars. In the month of April, 1815, I met Mr. Buchanan at the house of his brother-in-law John Parkes, Esq. Sheep-Street, Warwick, and somehow or other I was led to speak of this work, and my own unsuccessful attempts to purchase it. Mr. Buchanan, at the moment, did not seem to take much notice of my words; but on Thursday, June 1, 1815, I to my great surprise and great joy, received from Mr. John Parkes the precious volume, and it was accompanied by a most sensible and polite letter from Mr. Buchanan, dated May 3 1815. Gladly and gratefully do I acknowledge this important act of kindness." S. P.

——— Essay on Immortality, 8vo. 1814

Extract of a Letter from the author to Basil Montague, Esq., through whose medium the foregoing copy was presented to Dr. Parr.

"My best acknowledgments are claimed by your remembrance of me, and I lose no time in availing myself of your kind suggestion. I had meditated and mentioned to Mr. Dawes my intention of presenting a copy of the Essay on Immortality to Dr. Parr, but was, in fact, afraid of exposing my emptiness. Your Note has encouraged me, and I now send the only bound copy in my possession, which I beg to present to Dr. Parr, in testimony of my respect, as well as of my sense of the distinguished commendation he was pleased to bestow on my former publication. With regard to the present Essay, the subject itself is, doubtless, of the first magnitude; and, notwithstanding the poverty and lameness, with which my scanty means oblige me to treat it, I consider the philosophic ground therein broached as claiming a deeply preponderating interest with all those, who have heretofore built their hopes, or their fears, upon the evils of human life; and these you know form the general bulk of mankind, as well high as low. I therefore do hope, on every account, that it may find the sanction of the world. One point I have already attained, for ordinary readers oppress me with approbation; but yet 'all this availeth me nothing,' unless sanctioned by the higher powers, and you will judge how much I am rejoiced to learn that Dr. Parr approves it. I shall still wait, however, with fear and trembling, till I may be favoured with your final report."

Dr. Parr's Observations, appended to Mr. Fearn's Letter.

"Such is the humble and diffident manner in which Mr. Fearn speaks of his own abilities, and such is the serious and earnest tone which he justly assumes upon the importance of his subject. Scanty might be the external means which books afforded him; but his own vigorous and reflecting mind supplied him with materials copious and most useful. He might have been prejudiced and perplexed by a larger acquaintance with the writings of other men, but he knew well how to avail himself of the opportunities, which his own peculiar situation presented to him, for contemplating the ways of God, and the condition of man. Without the wayward ambition of distinguishing himself by novelty or singularity, he, by the guidance of his own mind, was led to a very original view of many circumstances in the moral world, which, in my opinion, are better understood, and better illustrated by him, than by some of our ablest advocates for a future life. He is singular, but not visionary; he is firm, but not dogmatical: his reasoning is close—his spirit is candid—and his piety, I am sure, is sincere. I grant that his style, in the scientific part of his book, is very uncouth; and yet I prefer it to the rhetorical diction of the second part. But even in this gaudy, and sometimes ranting diction, I trace moral properties, which more than expiate the defects of the composition; for they shew the sincerity of the writer in his pursuit of truth, and the ardour of his feelings, when he supposes himself to have reached, or to have approached it. I love Mr. Fearn, and I am glad to record my gratitude to him for turning my attention to subjects, which I had before seen dimly and confusedly, and for strengthening my belief in a world to come. My general faith has, indeed, never wavered; but I am accustomed to weigh carefully, and to welcome gladly every additional argument, by which that faith may be confirmed and invigorated." S.P. Oct. 13, 1814.

"The Defence of Mr. Locke, in his forensic use of the word Person, was written by Dr. Law, Bp. of Carlisle, and it rests upon the same principle as that contained in the work of Vin. Perronet. Dr. Parr, being struck with the similarity, desired Bp. Bennet to ask Bp. John Law, whether Perronet's book was in the library of his father: the answer was, that Bp. Law's books had been lost in their passage to Ireland, but that he had some very faint recollection of having seen Perronet's book in the possession of his father." S. P.

A Mr. Robson, hearing that Dr. Parr had been told he was the author, disclaimed being so, in a very handsome letter. The real author, Dr. Lucas, sent a copy of his book to Dr. Parr, who finds nothing in it to blame, but a very rash, invidious, and groundless charge, of having written some puffs in the newspaper, about his own learning and his claims to ecclesiastical preferment." Margarita Philosophia, sive Epitomie omnis Philosophiæ, Auctore Gregorio Reisch, 4to. Basiliæ, 1508

" A most extraordinarily scarce book, printed by Schottus, and containing, at the conclusion, an address to the reader, ending with these lines.

Hoc nisi spectetur signatum nomine Schotti, Nunquam opus exactum candid Lector emes.

" The title-page is wanting: the first Book is grammatical, and ends with a Prosody. The second is upon Rhetoric and Logic. The third is upon Epistolary Writing, and the fourth goes on to Arithmetic and Logarithms. The fifth is upon the Philosophy of Music. The sixth is upon speculative Geometry. The seventh is upon Astrology. The eighth, quite scholastic, 'de Principiis Rerum Naturalium.' The ninth, 'De Origine Rerum Naturalium.' The tenth is 'De anima et Potentiis ejusdem.' The eleventh is 'De Anima Intellectivi.' The twelfth is 'De Principiis Philosophiæ Moralis.'

His Definition of an apostate is this: 'Apostata (ut Doctori irrefragabili visum est) est qui temerarie a statu fidei, obedientiæ ecclesiasticæ vel religionis recedit. Hereticus (ut Augustinus ait lib. de utilitate credendi) est qui alicujus temporalis commodi et maxime gloriæ principatusque su gratia, falsas ac novas opiniones vel gignet vel sequitur. Blasphemus autem, ut Sancto Thomæ placet, est quicunque negat aliquid de Deo quod sibi convenit, vel attribuit Deo aliquid quod ei non convenit: aut creaturæ tribuit quod Deo appropriatur. Quod si ex certa malitia fiat peccatum est in spiritum sanctum et irremissibile; id est, non facile remissibile, quamvis secundum Augusti peccatum in Spiritum Sanctum, proprie sit finalis impœnitentia, et illud nec hic nec in futuro sæculo remittitur.' "The last mentioned book abounds with pleasantry as well as abstruse reasoning. The style is perspicuous and elegant, and the model formed upon that of Mr. Hume. The principles lead to unqualified scepticism in natural as well as revealed religion. It is a very curious fact, that the Bishop of Landaff, in the last volume of his Divinity Tracts, when pointing out books for young Students, gravely recommends this very work, as likely to please those persons who have a turn for Metaphysical Enquiries. I shall suspect that he had hardly read beyond the title-page. When living at Norwich, I ordered the book for a club, and having read it, I would not suffer it to go forward. During the controversy upon materialism, between Priestley, Price, and others, Priestley met with this book; he was struck with the talents of the writer; he eagerly enquired after him for several years, and at last he was informed that his name was Russel, and that he had left England for the West Indies." The Dutiful Advice of a loving Son to his aged Father, 12mo. 1651

"Dr. Parr is bound to make the following statement. Mr. Hume, in his History of England, speaks of Sir Walter Raleigh as one of the first Free-thinkers in this country. Now in Raleigh's History of the World, he again and again writes as a believer in Revelation. What then should lead Mr. Hume to this opinion? It was, Dr. Parr suspects, hastily and not very fairly formed from the title of the Tract, which stands first in this collection. This acute and philosophical little work contains, indeed, the medulla of scepticism, but then it is a mere tentamen or lusus, as Mr. Hume ought to have seen. But Mr. Hume looked no further, or he would have found in other parts of the same volume, decisive proofs of Sir Walter's piety. Dr. Parr appeals to the 'Instructions to his Son and posterity,' and to 'the Dutiful Advice of a loving Son to his aged Father.' In the former there is a chapter with this title: 'Let God be thy protector and director in all thy actions;' and in the latter, although there is no express mention of the name of Christ, there are frequent and serious references to the New Testament, St. Austin, St. Cyprian, and to Daniel."

"Dr. Parr would here notice one curious fact. The eloquent passage in page 45 of the introduction to Warburton's Julian, was probably suggested to the bishop by a passage equally eloquent in Sir Walter Raleigh's History, where he is speaking of the fall of the Roman Empire."

Motion, Dr. Smith's complete System of Optics, and Dr. Jurin's Essay upon Distinct and Indistinct Vision, 1739.—4. A Reply to Mr. Robins's Remarks, by James Jurin, M.D. 1739. —5. A full Confutation of Dr. Jurin's Reply to the Remarks of his Essay upon Distinct and Indistinct Vision, by Benjamin Robins, 1640.—6th. A Letter in Answer to Mr. Robins' full Confutation in the Reply to his Remarks on the Essay upon Distinct and Indistinct Vision, by James Jurin, M. D. 1741.—7. A Preliminary Discourse to an Intended Treatise on the Fluxionary Method, largely explaining the Nature and Pecularity of that Doctrine, in a familiar and easy Manner, by John Rowning, 1756, 8vo.

In the second volume are contained, 1. The Theory of Vision, by Berkley, 1735.—2. The Analyst, or a Discourse addressed to an Infidel Mathematician, by Berkley.—3. Geometry no Friend to Infidelity, or a Defence of Sir Isaac Newton and the British Mathematicians, in a Letter to the Author of the Analyst, by Philalethes Cantabrigiensis. "In this Tract there is an ingenious Defence of Mr. Locke's meaning, not his words, upon Abstract Ideas."—4. A Defence of Free-Thinking in Mathematics, in Answer to a Pamphlet of Philalethes Cantabrigiensis: with an Appendix concerning Mr. Walton's Vindication of the Principles of Fluxions against the Objections contained in the Analyst, by Berkley.—5. The Minute Mathematician, or the Free-Thinker no Just Thinker, set forth in a second Letter to the Author of the Analyst, by Philalethes Cantabrigiensis, 1735, 8vo.

Tractatus Philosophici. An extensive Collection of Philosophical Tracts, consisting chiefly of Disputations held at different German Universities, circa 1620-1720. 9 vol. 4to.

"I consider this as a rare and valuable collection of tracts upon various, and some of them most interesting, subjects of Philosophy. I never saw, nor even heard of these tracts as possessed by any English Scholar, or known to them. I bought them from Mr. Ford, a vigilant bookseller at Manchester. I read many of them in that town, when I was visiting my learned friend Dr. Holme; I read more afterwards at Hatton, and I look upon the Collection quite as a precious treasure." S. P.

Tracts relating to the Scotch Society at Norwich, afterwards called the Society of Universal Good Will, "of which I was a member. They were written by the active and humane president, Dr. Murray, a Physician in Norwich." Also Tracts published by the Philanthropic Society in London instituted for the prevention of crimes. " ' In Payne's Catalogue, 1770, this is given to Price. Query, the same man who wrote on morals?' To this query by a former possessor of the Work, (apparently not Dr. Lort, whose autograph is however on the same page,) Dr. Parr makes the following reply:—'The Dr. Price who wrote on Morals, also published some Dissertations, of which one is on Providence. But this Work, in Godwin's Book on Political Justice, is expressly and justly ascribed to Mr. Wallace, and the internal arguments are numerous and decisive. There is no resemblance of Dr. Price's style or manner of reasoning. There is more vivacity, more taste, more sensibility, than there is in the writings of Dr. Price. There are many instances of Scotticism. There is a long and pointed reference in the Note of p. 7, to the admirable Work of Mr. Wallace on the Populousness of Ancient Nations.

I was particularly struck with the Vindication of Providence, the Scheme of Liberty, and the Scheme of Necessity." S. P.

" Dr. Parr suspects a mistake in the quotation from Hippocrates, p. 3. ἰλλιβορίζειν χρή. Hippocrates gives ἰλλίβορος for veratrum, and ἰλλιβορωμός is used by Paulus Aegineta and Aetius. The word ἰλλιβορίζειν is used by Demosthenes and Plutarch. I doubt whether it be used by Hippocrates." S.P.

"In my Northern tour, Dr. Holme of Manchester, showed me a 12mo., the work of the learned Dr. Lawrence, on the Dropsy. I was delighted with it. But in one place, I found est instead of sit, after ut final. I pointed out the error to Dr. Holme, and it was inserted in his copy, and appears in this Manuscript. Not being able to get the book, I desired Dr. Holme to lend it to Dr. Smith, the learned Master of Manchester School, and also desired Dr. Smith to employ one of his boys in making the transcript. It was made by a young gentleman named Evans, and I received it at Hatton, Nov. 3, 1823." S. P.

"This learned work 'De Tintinnabulis' was written by Magius, whilst he was working as a slave in a quarry in Turkey. Dr. Parr bought and read the book when he lived at Colchester. He has since met with only one learned book on bells. He found it in the copious and curious library at Shrewsbury. He borrowed it with the leave of the learned master, Dr. S. Butler. He for many years has made many enquiries among booksellers, celebrated and obscure. They knew nothing of the book, and as it is a great curiosity, Dr. Parr will insert the title here. '*Abb. Jo. Bapt. Paccichelli JCti. ex Regali Parthenopæo Theologorum Collegio, de Tintinnabulo Nolano Lucubratio Autumnalis: in qua D. "2, Upper Grosvenor Street, April 14th, 1812.

"Dear Dr. Parr,

"If I had published these volumes myself, you should have had the very first copy of them. If they contain nothing which may advance the cause of the world, they ought to be presented to nobody; but if they do,—in whose library can they be so fitly placed as in your's? though, on my own account, I fear the severe judgment of one who must have ever present to his mind,

'Those Ancients, whose resistless eloquence
'Wielded at will that fierce democracy,
'Shook the arsenal, and fulmin'd over Greece,
'To Macedon, and Artaxerxes' throne.'

My hope, however, is, that you may be deceived into an approbation of them, when you recollect that it is the cause of our own renowned and beloved country which is pleaded in them, and by an old and sincere friend; and that they were not precomposed, nor even premeditated, much less, like some of old, written after the occasions; but were all of them, as far as expression goes, impromptu, in the most literal sense of the word, and only preserved by the art of short-hand writing; not, I believe, known in Greece or Rome, nor indeed at all necessary to perpetuate the superior, but laboured, compositions of antiquity." "ERSKINE."

"Dr. Parr thinks this the scarcest book in his library. He saw it about forty years ago in White's catalogue, and eagerly secured it. He never saw it in any other Catalogue; he never found a scholar who knew its existence; he has in vain enquired for it in the University libraries, and the libraries of collectors. The learned Mr. Hamley, of New College, Lady Oxford, and at her request Mr. Windham, the English Minister at Florence, and the Russian Minister, who was a collector, could not find it in Milan, Florence, Venice, and other parts of Italy. Mr. Blunt, the ingenious son of a Birmingham surgeon, was for several years busy in enquiring at the libraries and booksellers' shops in Paris, but could not hear of it. At length Mr. Hobbs Scott, in 1819, rummaging some old neglected books in the back room of a bookseller at Rome, met with it. The bookseller knew not its value. Mr. Scott paid a few shillings, and brought the book to Hatton. Dr. Parr then gave his other copy, as a rarity, to adorn the library of his honoured friend and patron, Mr. Coke, of Holkham."

" In the Luctus on the Death of Frederic Prince of Wales, are the celebrated Iambics of Dr. George, commonly called the Cardinal Verses, because Pope Lambertini, in reading them, exultingly exclaimed, 'If the writer were of my church, I would make him a Cardinal.'—I have caused to be transcribed and prefixed, some Iambics written by Sherlock, when Master of Catharine Hall, in 1714, on the Death of Queen Anne, and the Accession of George I." 'Equidem,' says Budæus, 'ἀκυρόκαλον apud illos tam significans esse puto, quam apud nos ineptum, nec minus forfasse ἀτίθασον καὶ σκαιον, καὶ μάταιον.'—I decide with Cicero and Julius Scaliger against Budæus." "This notorious work bears the name of a Lady, Louisa Sigea, but was indisputably written by Nicholas Chorier, an attorney of Grenoble, whose whole life corresponded with the maxims therein disclosed."—See Mr. Bohn's Catalogue for 1816, page 49.

"Mr. E. H. Maltby, of Pembroke College, told Dr. Parr, that he had heard the book ascribed to Westrenius, an advocate of Copenhagen.

"Dr. Parr can find no account of the book, either in the Syntagma de Scriptis et Scriptoribus Anonymis et Pseudonymis, by Placcius, Hamburg, 1675, or in the larger work of Placcius.

"Whoever was the writer, the book is the most impure, and nearly the only impure book, in Dr. Parr's library. He has to state the following facts about it.

"Allured by the title, he bought the book, when he lived at Stanmore, as a philological book, but, after reading several pages, he discovered his entire mistake. Soon after, he was visited by Sir W. Jones, and told him the story: Sir William laughed at him as an ignoramus. Dr. Parr, fearful that the book would catch the eye of his boys, desired Sir W. Jones to take it, and he did take it. Thus matters rested till Dr. Parr came to Hatton, where he one day desired his friend, Harry Homer, to get the book as decorously as he could. Harry assented, and procured the book in a small, well printed, octavo form. Dr. Parr read it, with unfeigned disgust at the impurity, and with diminished approbation of the Latinity; which in truth, though showy, is by no means classical. He gave the book afterwards to Mr. John Pearson, a very clever man, who lives at Tettenhall in Staffordshire, on condition that he should take what book or books he should choose from Mr. Pearson's library. Some years afterwards, he told this tale to the Rev. Mr. C ——e, a learned and grave Noncon Divine, who afterwards gave Dr. Parr a duodecimo copy found by him in a valuable collection of books, once belonging to an equally grave Noncon Divine at Coventry, whose books Mr. C——e bought after his death. This Catalogue will be read by Dr. Parr's Executors; and he lays upon them the strictest injunction either to destroy the book, or to take care into whose hands it may fall when Dr. Parr is no more." S. P.

"Dr. Parr resumes the subject of Meursius. From Mr. Maltby's suggestion, he examined the Biographia Britannica under the article Meursius, where the book is ascribed to one Westrenius, an advocate of Copenhagen, but there is no reference to evidence. Aided by the article in the Biographia, which Mr. Maltby pointed out, Dr. Parr again consulted the larger work of Placcius, and in the Index he found the words Westrenius, Aloysia Sigæa. On looking at Aloysia, p. 32, No. 121, de Scriptoribus Pseudonymis, he met with the following words: 'Aloysia Sigæa. Hujus eruditæ fœminæ nomen mentitur Satyra quædam Sotadica, uti prolixè ostendit Morhofius Polyhistor. lib. 1. cap. 8. p. 76, vero libelli autore non adaperto. Illum Isaaco Vossio postmodum in privato colloquio tribuisse Morhofium, innuit Junckeri fœmina erudita p. 126. Qui et ibidem refert Thomasium in Monathlichen Gedancken autorem nuncupasse quidem, sed non nisi primoribus nominis literis. Part. 2, p. 586. Quæ tamen literæ, der H. W. satis aperte explicantur, verumque autoris nomen inde D. Joh. Westrene, eruitur in den. Monathlichen Unterredungen Ann. 1693. p. 167, uti docebunt ea, quæ sub lit. (a) inde excerpta subjunximus. Ut et ex Teisserio Elogior. Thueanor. part. 1, p. 183. (b) De illa prolixè Nicolaus Antonius Biblioth. Hispanicæ, p. 57.

Beddoes' (Dr.). Alexander's Expedition to the Indian Ocean, a Poem, 4to. (privately printed) 1792

Presented to Dr. Parr by Mr. William Anstice, and accompanied by the following letter:

"The late Dr. Beddoes must be known to Dr. Parr by character, if he was not personally. In any case the literary fragment, which accompanies this, cannot prove uninteresting. It owes its origin to a conversation, which took place at the table of the late Mr. William Reynolds; in which some men of taste and genius contended, that the poetic effusions of Darwin were inimitable. Dr. Beddoes maintained a contrary opinion; and to try the point, produced to the same party, a short time afterwards, the manuscript of the present piece, as from his friend Darwin; and sent it to him for his inspection, previous to publication. The advocates for Darwin's style were deceived, and the Doctor triumphed. Mr. Reynolds had it printed at his own expence, but for obvious reasons it was not published, and therefore may never have met Dr. Parr's eye. It was printed in Madely; the types were set by a woman; and the engravings made on wood by the then, (and present) clerk of this parish."

"Page 166.—Luke's Iron Crown. In 1514, there was a fierce rebellion headed by George Zeck, and his brother Luke. They and their associates were defeated. A hot iron crown was placed on the head of George, whom the Hungarian insurgents had previously elected for their King. Other torments were inflicted upon him, which he bore patiently, and amidst all his agonies, requested that mercy might be shewn to his brother Luke, who had rebelled almost by compulsion of his brother George. But this was refused, and some of their comrades were almost starved, in order to make them feed on the carcases of their leaders, George and Luke. The history is fully related in the Respublica Hungarica. Boswell has the credit of pointing out Goldsmith's mistake of putting Luke for George. But possible it is, that Goldsmith having mentioned Damien, a proper name, would not have put Luke, a vague Christian name; and it is also possible, that Goldsmith wrote Zeck, and that the printer, unacquainted with the word, substituted the more familiar word Luke." Rowley.—Poems supposed to have been written by Rowley, with Notes by Dean Milles, 4to. 1782

"The opinion of an eminent critic (said to be Johnson,) having been requested concerning the merit of Mr. Bryant's and Dean Milles' publication in defence of the Pseudo-Rowley, it was delivered in the following words:—'Mr. Bryant's is a machine of bulk and complication, formed, in part, with rough materials, elaborately polished, and speciously arranged; but, taken all together, it is unsuccesfully applied to the purpose of lifting even a feather from the ground. The Dean's engine is larger and more unwieldy, being constructed of antiquarian lumber: as it was made without skill, it moves without progress, and has strong propensity to sink the object it was designed to raise.'" The learned Mr. Gaches was a subscriber, and lent the book to Dr. Parr who caused extracts to be made, from some apprehension that he might have occasion for them, if any unforeseen and unpleasant event should render it necessary for him to resume the controversy with Bishop Hurd Dr. Parr met with many passages which offended him; but as the names of Dr. Jortin and Dr. Leland were studiously avoided, Dr. Parr was resolved not to defend any other excellent men, whom the biographer had treated harshly. Archbishop Secker found an advocate in Mr. W. ————: Dr. P. lamented the languor of the Wykehamists, in suffering the unjust attack upon Bishop Lowth to pass unnoticed. Dr. Parr, in the correspondence between Bishops Hurd and Warburton, published after the death of Hurd, met with some offensive matter about Leland and Jortin; but as, in consequence of Warburton's life written by Hurd, and softened too in all probability by Dr. Parr's publication, and perhaps extorted from Hurd sooner than he intended to let it see the light, there has been a considerable change in public opinion, Dr. Parr determined not to take up his pen."

———————. The End of Religious Controversy, in a Friendly Correspondence between a religious Society of Protestants, and a Roman Catholic Divine, by Dr. Milner, second edition, revised and corrected, 1819, 8vo.

"Milner put forth his whole strength in this book, but he does not profess to have made one convert among his correspondents. He has been guilty of three most audacious and malignant calumnies. First, with an ostentatious, but very disputable exception, of Bp. Horsley and a few others, he accuses the great body of the English Clergy of Socinianism, and he unjustly reviles Bp. Hoadly, as a Socinian. Secondly, he perfidiously betrays private conversation between himself and the learned Dr. Rennell, Dean of Winchester, and imputes to him a leaning towards Popery, though it is well known that Dr. Rennell preached five elaborate Sermons, in the Temple Church, upon the Roman Catholic Question. Thirdly, he, in three places, accuses Bp. Hallifax, of confessing upon his death-bed, that he was a convert to the Church of Rome: he mentions some informer, but suppresses the name, and does not pretend to have made further enquiries. It is a wicked as well as a false accusation; and be it remembered that Hallifax, in his Warburtonian Lectures, at Lincoln's Inn, had, with considerable ability, controverted the doctrines of the Church of Rome. Dr. Parr prepared a book of expostulation with Milner, and was prevented from publishing it, not by any distrust in his cause, but by his habitual dislike of theological controversy."

The Reply to Milner here alluded to, has recently been published by Dr. Parr's Executors. EDITOR.

"Mr. Hollis gave Dr. Parr his "Apology" in the year 1809, and in the summer of 1812, he sent him his other works. Mr. Hollis leads a studious and blameless life at High Wycombe, Bucks., where Dr. Parr sometimes visits him. He is confessedly an unbeliever, but he never writes prophanely; he is charitable and respectful in his judgment upon the character of Christians; he devotes his time and his fortune to doing good; and, be his errors what they may, Dr. P. is bound, by the principles and spirit of Christianity, to love and to honour such a moral agent as Mr. Hollis."

In another note is:

"Dr. Parr knew Mr. Hollis personally, and considered him one of the most serious, upright, and benevolent of human beings. They often conversed upon the most important subjects; and whatsoever be the errors of Hollis, he supported them with much ability, and without any taint of acrimony or profaneness."

"The Fur Prædestinatus was republished and translated in 1813, in consequence of the execution of a Calvinist at Northampton. He denied the fact at the gallows. He had been encouraged in presumption and self-delusion by a Calvinist teacher. The Calvinists in Northamptonshire took up his cause, and attacked the judge and the jury. Their attack was repelled by the testimony of the offender's attorney, who lived at Wellingborough, and who, in justice to the laws of his country, published the criminal's private confession made to him in Northampton Gaol. One Huffey White, a notorious offender, was hanged at the same time, but did not deny his own guilt." S. P.

"Powell's Sermon stirred up the dispute. Mr. Wollaston, Vicar of Chislehurst; Porteus, then Rector of Lambeth, afterwards Bishop of London; and York, then Dean of Lincoln, afterwards Bishop of Ely; waited upon Cornwallis, Archbishop of Canterbury, to obtain his support for a Review of the Thirty-nine Articles, and a Reform of the Church Service on Dr. Clarke's plan. They failed; but Porteus, many years after, attacked the Socinians in a pamphlet without his name, which I have not, and which was lent to me by the late worthy and learned Dr. Matthew Raine of the Charter-house. I smiled at the conversion of Porteus, when he wore a mitre." S. P.

"This very able book was published on the application of the Dissenters for the Repeal of the Test Act. It has been ascribed to Serjeant Heywood, who probably was assisted by lawyers and dissenting clergymen. It is the only powerful book produced by the application, and it wrought a total change in Dr. Parr's mind on the general principle of Tests. He always disapproved of the sacramental Test, and he now sees the inefficacy and the injustice of all religious Tests whatsoever." S. P.

The Sermon of Dr. Snape appears to have been adapted to Hatton Church: the fly-leaf contains, in Dr. Parr's hand-writing, the following matter:—

"If there had been any real, or even seeming necessity, I could with ease have composed a Sermon upon this present occasion. But I believe that you will be sufficiently instructed and edified by the Discourse, which I am going to deliver to you. It is written with great clearness in the diction, great judgment in the matter, great earnestness in the spirit, and is in all respects worthy of the learned and pious author, Dr. Andrew Snape, Provost of King's College, who preached it."

VOLUMES OF TRACTS,

CHIEFLY

PHILOLOGICAL AND ANTIQUARIAN.

A Collection, to which Dr. Askew has prefixed this Index of Contents: ÆSOPI Fabulæ, Gr. et Lat. et Batrachomyomachia Gr. et Lat. Amst. 1672.—Thucydidis Quædam Lat. a Camerario, Witteb. 1565. 3. Basilius Magnus de Liberalibus Studiis et Ingenuis Moribus, Paris. 1543.—4. Laurentii Sifani Orationes duæ; altera de Laudibus Græcæ Linguæ, altera de Historia, Coloniæ, 1564.—5. Micylli (Jacobi) Ratio Examinandorum Versuum. Liber rarissimus, Francof. 1535.—6. Vallæ (Georgii) Præceptiones de Scribendâ Historia, Dialogo, Epistola, &c. Coloniæ, 1533.—7. Butinus de Syllabarum Quantitate, Paris ap. Colinæum, 1532, 12mo.

"Dr. Askew would never permit this book to be touched by his friends. He told me that Bentley was suspected of having obtained some metrical information from Micyllus, and one day, standing on a ladder, he read to me some parts, with which I was very much struck. After the death of Dr. Askew, I was determined to possess the book, and I gave Messrs. Leigh and Baker, of York-street, Covent-garden, an unlimited commission to secure it for me. I paid a considerable price for it, but I would not part with it for ten times that price. The work of Micyllus was republished, by him, in a much larger form. I never saw this larger work but once, and that was in the Bodleian Library, where the value of it was evidently unknown. I mentioned it to Mr. Gaisford, who seemed not to have heard of it before, and I earnestly, but ineffectually, recommended its republication to three Delegates of the Clarendon-Press." S. P.

From being misled by the Manuscript, the work of Micyllus has already been inserted separately at page 252, but Dr. Parr had only the copy contained in the above volume, and even that is, for the present, missing. Ed.

"This Collection was given to Dr. Parr by his much valued friend, Mr. Bathurst, Bookseller, Fleet-street, and is valuable for Taylor's Jacobite Speech, and Crowe's: it is to be remarked that Crowe was abused by the Cambridge Whigs in 1720, and his namesake, the Orator, by the Oxford Tories, for his Speech on the Centenary of the Revolution, and that each silenced his slanderers by a Publication.

"Upon the Cambridge Oration of Crowe, 1720, I would report, that he was supposed to be a Jacobite,—that his speeches were charged with Jacobitical principles; that he therefore published it, and, by publication, refuted the charge:—so much for Cambridge Whigs. Upon the Centenary of the Revolution, William Crowe, of Oxford, Public Orator, delivered a Speech which brought on him the imputation of republican principles. He showed Dr. Parr the Speech; and, with Dr. Parr's entire consent, determined to publish it. He, for the sake of fair dealing, would not introduce one verbal alteration. The publication silenced his accusers:—and so much for Oxford Tories." S. P.

Consisting of Notes discovered too late for insertion in their respective Places.

"Particularly observe page 21, where it is stated, with probability, that Mark and the unknown writer of the Greek Gospel of St. Matthew, drew from the same source; viz. the Aramæan, or Syriack Gospel of Matthew. Matthew talked Syriack; Mark did not; and as Matthew talked, so was he likely to write." S. P.

—— 4, after Codex Bezæ

In a variation of the same note, Dr. Priestley is called 'an eminently great and truly good man,' and Dr. Parr's 'most respected, injured, calumniated friend.'

—— 5, Quatuor Evangelia, Gr. ed. White

"Dedicated to Bishop Barrington; whose miserable notes ought not to have been admitted into the valuable Conjectures of Bowyer, Owen, and Markland, published in 4to." S. P.

—— 5, Novum Testamentum Vulgatæ Editionis, in Usum Cleri Gallicani in Anglia exulantis, 12mo. Oxon. 1796

"The Bishop of Lyons acknowledged the favour in a most pathetic and elegant Letter, which is prefixed."

"All sincere and enlightened friends of the University will honour this deed of truly Christian love; and implore the blessing of heaven upon those, who proposed and who promoted it."

"Why do the Romanists and Protestants revile each other? My Prayer is that God may bless both." S. P.

"Every intelligent, and serious, and honest teacher of the English Church, ought to read attentively the three following books:" S. P.

The Catholic Liturgy, published by Gandolphy.
The Roman Missal, for the use of the Laity.
Vespers, according to the Roman Breviary.

Page 8, after Arnobius adversus Gentes

"In the Defence of the Christians, by Arnobius, may be found all the arguments for religious Toleration." S. P.

—— 16, Aretius' (Benj.) Short History of Valentinus Gentilis, the Tritheist, tried, condemned, and put to Death at Berne, for asserting the three Divine Persons of the Trinity to be three distinct Eternal Spirits, now translated from the Latin for the use of Dr. Sherlock 1696

"A very curious book. Sherlock, with the praise of orthodoxy, fell into the very same opinion." S. P.

—— 9, Bibliotheca Græcorum Patrum, Auctarium novissimum

"In page 215. De creatione Mundi, we have the distinction between making and forming, and the same distinction occurs page 263. In page 215 we read 'Πνεῦμα γὰρ οὐ τὸ ἅγιον λέγει ἐνταῦθα, (οὗ γὰρ τῇ κτίσει συναριθμεῖται τὸ ἄκτιστον ἀλλὰ πνεῦμα καλεῖ τὴν τοῦ ἥρος κίνησιν.'" S. P.

—— 11, Justini Martyris Apologiæ duæ

"Presented to Dr. Parr by Dr. Robert Sumner, who has written a few notes on the margins."

—— 13. Reliquiæ Sacræ, ed. Routh

"A most learned work." S. P.

—— 17, Aviani Clavis Poeseos Sacræ

"This book is learned, visionary, and instructive." S. P.

—— 11, after Baker's Reflections upon Learning.

"Baker's book is to be compared with Huet's upon the Uncertainty of Human Knowledge." S. P.

—— 20, Bastwick

"This most injured man was put in the pillory, and lost his ears, in the reign of Charles I." S. P.

—— 20, Beckii Monogrammata Hermeneutices Libr. N. T.

"A very useful book." S. P.

—— 23, Bibliotheca Bremensis, 8 vol. 12mo.

"This work abounds with curious history and recondite criticism. Dr. Parr has read various parts of it, but perhaps not a fourth of the whole."

"This interesting work abounds with valuable information upon books and writers. I never met with any English Theologian, heterodox or orthodox, who had seen it. But I myself have read it very attentively, and could not fail to observe that the writer, while he professes to be orthodox, deliberately, and perhaps insidiously, produces the strongest arguments from books, which he affects to call heretical.

"Antecedent to the publication of Bock's book, the best was supposed to be Sandii Bibliotheca Anti-Trinitariorum. In it there is much acute criticism, but too much severity of censure." S. P.

—— 25, Bode, Pseudo-Critica Millio-Bengeliana

"A very learned work." S. P.

—— 27, Browne, Fasciculus Rerum Expetendarum

"The contents are curious and amusing." S. P.

—— 30, Calderwood, Altare Damascenum

"This work is a very argumentative and severe attack upon the attempts to force an Episcopal Church upon Scotland." S. P.

—— 32, Cappe's Four Discourses

"Excellent." S. P.

—— 34, Clendon (J.) Tractatus philosophico-theologicus de Persona

"When the library of the late Dr. Gosset was upon sale, his son told my friend, Mr. Barker, that his father considered this treatise on the word 'Person' as one of the very scarcest books in his collection. I have read it attentively, and have gained from it much valuable instruction. The reasoning is acute, and sometimes profound. The erudition is always apposite. The wit is sometimes caustic, but sometimes I think puerile and misplaced, upon a subject so grave, and directed against polemics so eminently able. After all, it is a most interesting and curious work. By vote of the House of Commons, March 24th, 1710, this book, together with a collection of passages referred to by Dr. Sacheverell, in his Answer to the Articles of Impeachment, the 'Rights of the Christian Church asserted,' and 'A Defence of the Rights of the Christian Church, were ordered to be burnt by the common hangman." "I have always respected Chishull's learning and sagacity. I have always suspected that he was acrimonious, and of that acrimony there are traces in his Antiquitates Asiaticæ, where he very ably controverts some opinions of Bentley upon Horace." S. P.

—— 42, Eichorn Commentarius in Apocalypsin Joannis

"In the first volume is only the Prolusio, very acute and very bold; the second contains the Commentary." S. P.

—— 43, Ellys on the Spiritual and Temporal Liberty of Subjects in England

"A most judicious work." S. P.

—— 44, Enquiry into the Rationale of Christianity (attributed to Mr. Balguy)

"This acute, and now most scarce book, was written by the celebrated Mr. Balguy, father of the no less celebrated Dr. Balguy. But, though printed, it was not published, through the interposition of the writer's friends. It contains a strange position, which Bishop Warburton has taken up, that at a particular time the devil was permitted to do mischief upon earth, and that the redemption of mankind by Jesus Christ, was planned in order to counteract that mischief. The copy which I possess, once belonged to Dr. Jortin, who wrote in it thus: 'This treatise hath not been published; it is written by one whose name begins with B.' After the death of Jortin, that copy came into the hands of Dr. Michael Lort. On the sale of Lort's books, it was purchased by the learned and amiable, Cleaver Banks, who gave it to me. The work has all the vigorous spirit, and all the accurate arrangement, which marks the other writings of Balguy; but it abounds with paradoxes, which I fairly confess would have a tendency to weaken the credibility of Christian revelation in my judgment, if I could suppose that the Sacred Writings afford any pretext for Balguy's reasonings. Warburton's notion may be seen in the last posthumous volume of the Divine Legation of Moses." S. P.

In another copy of this note there is the following variation:—

"The work has strong marks of Balguy's sagacious and vigorous intellect, of his acute reasoning, of his exact method, and his clear and animated style." S. P.

"Dr. Parr justly, and therefore greatly, values the various learning, the deep reflection, the elegant diction, and the rational, unfeigned, and sublime piety of his friend Robert Fellowes."

—— 48, Flemyng's Apocalyptical Key, and 'The Rod or the Sword'

"These two Tracts of Fleming were given to Dr. Parr by the credulous, and perhaps superstitious, but very benevolent and truly pious, Mrs. York, of Denbighshire." S. P.

—— 39, Forbes' Reflections

"At the end is a MS. quotation in praise of Mr. Hutchinson, extracted from a Visitation Sermon preached by B. Holloway, senior, called 'The Commemorative Sacrifice;' and delivered before Archdeacon Rye, at Woodstock, October 8, 1736. The person who made this extract adds, that Mr. Holloway's Sermon was meant to show the dangerous tendency of Hoadly's 'Plain Account of the Sacrament;' and he also notices a severe censure passed on Mr. Hutchinson's performances, by one who subscribes himself 'Common Sense,' in the Supplement to the Gentlemen's Magazine for 1775, p. 628." —— 55, Heshusius (T.). Sexcenti Errores pleni Blasphemiis, &c.

"Dr. Parr read this book carefully. He found in it often what seemed to him errors in the Church of Rome, but no one doctrine he would venture to call blasphemous. In the late controversy with the Romanists, he was shocked to find this word in the writings of English Protestants; and he would set a mark of the very strongest reprobation upon the word as applied by Barrington, Bishop of Durham, to the sacramental tenets of the Romanists." S. P.

—— 60, Livre de Trois fameux Imposteurs. Traité des Trois Imposteurs

"These two books are scarcely to be met with, and Dr. Parr being offered the choice of one or the other, thought it more discreet and becoming for himself to keep both, and thus far to prevent the diffusion of a dangerous opinion. The existence of the book has been disputed, and there is a grave discussion upon it, with a decision in the negative, which Dr. Parr read many years ago."

A second note:

"Dr. Parr possesses in a French duodecimo, the famous book 'De Tribus Impostoribus.' He possesses also a 4to. MS. copy transcribed from a printed copy, which belonged to Prince Eugene; and to this MS. are prefixed about forty pages containing some curious particulars. In the summer of 1819, Dr. Parr saw an English translation in the Library of Glasgow. It is seldom shown, and this caution is very proper; but Dr. Parr has obtained a transcript of some curious facts, which are prefixed to that copy. Dr. Parr has caused to be inserted in his 4to. MS., a full and correct statement of the controversy whether such a book existed, and who was the Author. Dr. Parr, in the spring of 1820, put the duodecimo and quarto copies together under some paper, and in his own hand wrote αόρατα καὶ ἄῤῥητα. When making his Catalogue, he could not find this paper, but it cannot be lost. He will renew his search, and if it should fail, he directs his executors to make the most careful search in all boxes and all corners; for he is very anxious that such a book should not go abroad, and fall into the hands of young or mischievous persons. His memory has been much affected by his late dangerous illness, and for this reason he has been unable to find the books, which he put by with such extraordinary care; but looked for they must be after his death."

Fabricius gives a good account of other books bearing this title. Kortholt wrote against Lord Herbert, Thomas Hobbes, and Benedict Spinoza. On the calumnies of some Romanists, who accused Frederick the Second, see p. 343 of Reimanni Historia Atheismi et Atheorum. Frederick the Second and Alphonso of Spain were unjustly accused by the Romanists. "Subjoined to it is a witty Latin Epitaph on Bigotry, by J. Reynolds, with a translation: the Letter is not only witty, but argumentative, and contains historical proofs of a fact, which, in opposition to the declaimers, the courtiers, and the zealots of his own time, Dr. Parr has strenuously maintained; viz. that the Presbyterians were guiltless of shedding the blood of Charles I. To their innocence, and even their merit, a decisive testimony is borne in the proclamation, which Charles II. sent forth from Holland, Oct. 25, 1660, wherein they are described as persons full of affection for the King, and of zeal for the peace of Church and State: see p. 9 of the Preface to vol. 1 of Nicholls upon the Common Prayer."

"To Dr. Parr's most sagacious and learned friend, Bobus Smith, whose terrors in his first, and indeed, only speech in Parliament, quite overcame his wonderful courage, Dr. Parr used to apply one of Polemo's sayings, recorded in the preface:—'Gladiatores aliquando spectans, quendam æstuantem et horrorem præsentis exitii totius corporis sudore declarantem cum intueretur: talis est, experto credito, dixit miseria Oratoris declamatorii.' The same remark has been twice made by Cicero concerning himself: 'Equidem et in vobis animadvertere soleo, et in me ipso sæpissime experior, ut exalbesam in principiis dicendi, et tota mente atque omnibus artubus contremiscam.' (De Oratore, libr. i. par. 26.) 'Ita deos mihi velim propitios, ut cum illius diei mihi venit in mentem, quo die, citato reo, mihi dicendum sit, non solum commoveor animo, sed etiam toto corpore perhorresco.' (Divinat. in Cæcilium.) And again in the Speech for Cluentius: "Hic ego cum ad respondendum surrexi, qua cura dii immortales! qua sollicitudine animi? quo treore? Semper equidem magno commotu incipio dicere. Quotiescunque dico, toties mihi videor in judicium venire, non ingenii solum, sed etiam virtutis atque officii.'"

—— 216, Thucydides Hudsoni, folio Oxon, 1696

"There is in my library scarcely any book I prize so highly as this. My reasons are, it is the very book in which I first read Thucydides at Emmanuel College; it contains a few marginal notes of mine, which are of no value; I gave it to my learned pupil John Wright; it was sold after his death. I was anxious to recover it, and for many years I made many fruitless enquiries. June 27, 1816. I attended a Visitation of Bishop Parsons at Northampton. I there met Mr. Rose, a clergyman quite unknown to me. After dinner he said he had a book of mine. 'What?' said I. He answered, 'Thucydides by Hudson, and it has some MS. notes of yours.' I told him my piteous tale. He most politely and kindly gave me the book." S. P.

"Of the Erotemata of Demetrius Chalcondylas there is, in the Library of Emmanuel College, a copy of the first edition in 4to.; and the very learned Dr. Askew has, in his own hand, stated that that book is very scarce, and fetched, at the sale of Alberti's books, 40 guineas, unless Dr. Parr's memory deceives him. Dr. Parr wished to borrow the book, and actually gave a Note to Mr. Bennet, now Bp. of Cloyne, for the above sum; but he took fright, recalled his Note, and left the book in College. He was in London soon after, and enquired for the Erotemata at the shop of the very intelligent Mr. B. White, Horace's Head, Fleet-street. Mr. W. employed a good deal of time in looking over his books, and, to Dr. P.'s great joy, found this 12mo. edition. Dr. Parr lost no time in reading the Erotemata. He gave Mr. White a handsome price for it, and then ventured to tell him about the quarto edition.

"At the request of Dr. Ingenhous, the Scholar of Hoogeveen Senior, and the Friend of Hoogeveen Junior, I obtained permission from the Cambridge Delegates for the Analogical Dictionary to be printed at the University Press, on condition that the subscription-money should be given to Mr. Hoogeveen Jun., and that the University afterwards should have the profits arising from the sale of the book. I obtained subscriptions from many Colleges in both the Universities, and from many Scholars. I met with the utmost kindness from Dr. Craven, the Vice-Chancellor, Dr. Farmer of Emmanuel, and several other heads: I was opposed, for a time, in my endeavours to have the Gazophylacium of Cattier added to the Dictionary: I was so displeased with Dr. Pearce of Jesus College for his opposition to my well-founded advice, that I refused to write the Preface, as I once intended to do. I had much satisfactory conversation with the learned Dr. Davy of Caius College, and I suppose that, by his interposition, the work, so necessary to establish the principle, upon which the Dictionary is founded, was eventually, and most judiciously, added by the Delegates. I know that Mr. Tyson, once Fellow of Emmanuel, and now Rector of Thurcaston, in Leicestershire, shewed great diligence and great judgment as corrector of the press; and I had the good fortune to solve some difficulties about the editions, to which Hoogeveen sometimes refers." "This very acute and temperate book was written by Dr. Parr's friend, the Rev. Mr. Bruckner, a learned Teacher of the French Language, in Norfolk, an eloquent Preacher at the French Chapel at Norwich, an excellent Latin Scholar, and the Disciple of Valckenaer, many of whose valuable dictata upon Greek and Latin, Mr. Bruckner, when attending his Lectures, had put down in writing, and obligingly showed to Dr. Parr. Mr. Horne Tooke's asperity to Bruckner was most unmerited, and most unprovoked. The title of Cassander puzzled many readers. Mr. Bruckner, when he lived in Holland, was a great admirer of Grotius; and, in the 4th vol. of Grotius's Works, in folio, p. 557. is contained the plan of Cassander, called 'Constitutio Cassandri,' upon the articles of religion controverted between Catholics and Protestants. It was addressed to the Emperor Ferdinand I., and his Successor, Maximilian II., and is a most profound work. Prefixed to it is a copious and learned epitaph upon Cassander, and in the front of it are two words, which Dr. P. does not understand: the words are 'quando tandem.' They stand alone; they cannot be incorporated with the epitaph itself; they probably are the introductory words to some well-known sacred Hymn of the Roman Catholic Church. Dr. P. could not find them among the titles, or leading words, of the Latin Psalms. He has mentioned them to many Scholars, but could never get any satisfactory answer. Mr. Bruckner assumed the name of 'Cassander,' because he meant his book to be conciliatory between Mr. Tooke and his opponents."

—— 337, Bromley's (William, Esq. Speaker of the House of Commons in 1710) Remarks on the Grand Tour of France and Italy, 8vo. . 1705

The first edition of Mr. Bromley's Grand Tour, was published in 1692, and is said to have been withdrawn soon after, in consequence of a change in his politics. The second edition was published, without permission, by one of the whig party, upon an occasion when it was most likely to prove a source of annoyance; with the addition of a Table of Contents, turning the author's observations into ridicule. The present was Mr. Bromley's own copy, and contains the following curious autograph on the fly-leaf. (Ed.)

"This edition of these Travels is a specimen of the good-nature, and good-manners of the Whigs, and I have reason to believe of one in the Ministry, (very conversant in this sort of calumny,) for the sake of publishing 'the Table of the principal Matters, &c.' to expose me, whom the Gentlemen of the Church of England designed to be Speaker of the House of Commons, in the Parliament that met Oct. 25, 1705. When, notwithstanding the Whigs and Court joining to keep me out of the chair, and the greatest violence towards the Members, turning out some, and threatening others, to influence their votes, I had the honour, (and I shall ever esteem it a greater honour, than my competitor's success,) to have the suffrages of 205 disinterested gentlemen for me: such a number as never lost such a question before; and such as, with the addition of those that by force, and contrary to their inclination, with the greatest reluctancy voted against me, must have prevailed for me.

"This was a very malicious proceeding; my words and meaning being plainly perverted in several places; which, if they had been improper, and any observations trifling or impertinent, an allowance was due for my being very young, when they were made. But the performances of others, not entitled to such allowance, may be in this manner exposed, as appears by the like Tables published for the Travels of Bp. Burnet and Mr. Addison." Wm. Bromley.

The following note is added by Dr. Parr :—

"This book contains the hand-writing of Mr. Bromley. It was his own copy, and I suspect that, at some time or other, it was stolen from the library at Baginton. It was once in the possession of the Rev. Mr. Eman, a studious dissenting minister of Coventry, who with a small income, contrived to buy many good books. Upon the death of Mr. Eman, his whole library was bought by the Rev. and very learned Mr. Corrie of Birmingham. Mr. Corrie lent it me as a very curious book, and, by great importunity, I prevailed upon him to give it to me. Mr. Bromley was very much galled with the republication, and the ridiculous, but not untrue, representation of the contents. Such a work would unavoidably expose the author to derision: instead, therefore, of suffering it to be sold after my death, and to become a subject of contemptuous gossip, or an instrument of party annoyance, I think it a proper act of respect and kindness for the Bromley family, for me to put it in possession of the Rev. Mr. Davenport Bromley, upon the express condition that he never sells it nor gives it away, that, after reading it, he seals it up carefully, and places it where no busy eye, nor thievish hand can reach it." S. P. Hatton Parsonage, Oct. 11, 1823.

"I first saw Glandorpius, when I was visiting Holkham, in the autumn of 1812: it was this very copy. I borrowed it of Mr. Coke, kept it for more than two years, and returned it. Knowing it to be a book somewhat scarce, I looked for it in Catalogues, in a few private, and several public Libraries. I found a copy in the Bodleian at Oxford; I wrote to several London booksellers to get a copy for myself. I called in the assistance of my learned friend, Henry Barker, and on Tuesday, the 11th of April, 1815. a copy reached me, for my own use at Hatton. I visited Holkham in August, 1816. and it occurred to me that I should show my respect and gratitude to Wm. Coke, my friend and patron, by offering him my copy in exchange for his. I will now give a reason for making the offer, which Mr. Coke accepted. The copy, which Barker procured for me, once belonged to the Baron de Beaufort, whose books had been recently sold in London, by Mr. Lowndes: now Mr. Lowndes acted for the very respectable booksellers, Leigh and Sotheby. This copy contains many references, and many remarks, in the hand-writing of the Baron de Beaufort, and therefore is extremely valuable. The Baron was a good Scholar, a great Antiquary, and a very eloquent and animated Writer. In 1738. he published a French work, on the uncertainty of the early History of Rome, upon which subject a very interesting controversy had just before arisen between M. de Jouilly, who assailed, and Sallier, who defended it. I have the publications of both, in the 2d volume of the Select Discourses of the French Academy, which Dr. Rose of Chiswick sent forth in three volumes. Now, my opinion has long been with Sallier, but I had read attentively a translation of the first edition of Beaufort's book. I never saw the original, but I know that in 1750. he published a second edition, much improved. This work of Glandorpius contains much matter connected with the favourite studies of Beaufort. Mr. Hooke, to the first volume of his excellent Roman History, prefixed a long Dissertation, in which he shows that Newton's Chronology, by shortening the time allowed to the Roman kings, is so far well founded. He, in that Dissertation, once mentions Beaufort. Afterwards, he, to the fourth volume, prefixed a long and elaborate Discourse, in which he directly, and I think successfully, answers the objections of Priestley, and Beaufort gives the substance of Sallier's reasonings, and adds much valuable matter from his own well-stored mind. All these particulars I have stated fully in the copy, which I sent Mr. Coke. The subject had been discussed before the controversy in France, and Scholars will find it mentioned by Dr. John Taylor, in the beginning of his book on the Elements of Civil Law. Taylor was more sceptical than I am, and evidently leaned to the opinion of Priestley and Beaufort. I shall have the references and remarks of Beaufort transcribed; but the copy, which I sent Mr. Coke, is very valuable, because it contains the autograph of Beaufort." S. P., Oct. 8, 1817.

—— 407, Laing's History of Scotland.

"Much of the praise which Hampton's friend bestows on Knolles' History of the Turks, may be extended to Mr. Laing's History of Scotland. 'His style is nervous, elevated, and clear. A wonderful multiplicity of events is so artfully arranged, and so distinctly explained, that each facilitates the knowledge of the next. Collateral events are so artfully woven into the contexture of his principal story, that they cannot be disjointed without leaving it lacerated and broken.—There is nothing turgid in his dignity, nor superfluous in his copiousness.'—Rambler, No. 122."

"The ardour of Mr. Laing in the cause of liberty, is not disgraced by democratic coarseness, or theoretic refinement. His enquiry into the controverted question of Mary's participation in the death of Darnley, is minute without tediousness, and acute without sophistry.—Whether I consider his sagacity in explaining causes, his clearness in relating facts, his vigour in pourtraying characters, or his ingenuity in unfolding and enforcing principles, I shall ever find reason to lament that the continuation of Hume's History was not undertaken by a writer so eminently qualified as Mr. Laing is for a work so arduous and so important." Dr. Parr's projected life of Dr. S. Johnson.

"The following useful, and some of them scarce books, from Falster to Colomesius, were many years ago read and laid by in a particular part of Dr. Parr's library, for the special purpose of being used by him, when he intended, upon a very large scale, to write the life of Dr. Johnson. He meant also to employ the epistles of learned men to a great extent; the writings of Bembo, Politian, and other Italian scholars; the Parrhasiana of Le Clerc, with the Poggiana, Casauboniana, &c; the Polyhistor of Morhofius, and one of his critical works; various Writings upon Criticism, and De Ratione Studiorum; some parts of Scioppius, D. Heinsius, and Salmasius de Lingua Hellenistica; with some critical works of H. Stephens; the Opuscula Theologica et Philologica of Ernesti; some Academica Opera of Heyne; Placcius de Scriptoribus anonymis; and various other Works, critical or historical, mentioned in this Catalogue. He just now remembers the Aristarchus of Vossius, a work of Maussacus subjoined to his edition of Harpocration, entitled Historia Rei Criticæ; and Jonsius de Vitis Philosophorum. He will ever have to lament that, amidst his cares, his sorrows, and his wants, he did not write the life of his learned and revered friend."

Summe Deus! grates a me tibi semper agendæ,
Quod bona librorum, et provisæ frugis in annum est
Copia; mente fruor quod sana in corpore sano,
Natales læte numerans, et carus amicis.
Discendi quod amor viget, atque instante senecta
Spes vitæ melioris inhæret pectore in imo.
